

At daytime, February 25, 2017, outside of the Clerk County courthouse, two anthro animals, one who is district attorney named Casey Llama, and a deputy sheriff named Bryan Bullworth.

Casey Llama is a female anthro llama, who was at the age of 61, and was wearing a Hawaii style shirt, and could be seen carrying her cellphone. Sheriff Bryan Bullworth is a male anthro deer who's body cam recorded his and Casey's discussion about the case, however the audio was muted.

It was right after 3 minutes that the audio came back on as the two approached to see five people that was standing outside of the Clerk County courthouse entrance.

"JUST ANSWER MY QUESTION ALREADY!! DO I HAVE TO BRING OUT MY STUN GUN!?!?" A female voice yelled, which turned out to be Judy Hopps. She and Nick Wilde, who wore his police uniform, were talking to an anthro male tiger named Edwards Roarford. He was wearing a white shirt with the brown jeans, as his arms crossed.

He was standing beside two attorneys, one an anthro male cat wearing an elegant suit with the red tie, brown belt securing his blue pants, and two leather shoes named Riyuuneko Tanaka, and the other a female anthro cheetah wearing a gray shirt and jeans and leather shoes, who was carrying a big briefcase with two hands in front of her.

Nick Wilde rubbed his head after hearing Judy yell at Edwards, like it was giving him a big headache. "Carrots, please, do you really have to be this loud?" Nick said.

"Quiet, Nick! I'm the one doing the interrogation!" Judy retorted.

"My client chose to remain silent, officer. He's under no obligation to answer any questions." Riyuuneko replied, while he and his assistant attorney stood without even shaking in fear or flinching by Judy's yelling.

"Quiet! If I want your opinions, I'll ask for it! Now you will- Huh? Oh hi!" Judy's ranting ended as she smiled at the deer sheriff and the llama district attorney who were confronting the two attorneys.

"Hi there, my name is Casey Llama, I'm with the sheriff's office." She then gave the search warrant for Edward's vehicle to Riyuuneko.

"Ok." He said before he read the warrant thoroughly. "Anyway, are you going to answer my question or not? Did you abuse Mrs. Edwards in any way?" Judy asked. "I don't answer questions." Edwards replied, to which Judy slapped her self in the face, bothered by his answer.

Riyuuneko nodded after reading the warrant and looked at the officers and Casey. "I see. Well, the warrant that you have are for the possessions on his vehicle, right?"

Casey nodded. "That's correct."

Riyuuneko nodded as well, before Judy pointed right at him. "Look, I had a video of you getting those two phones from that scumbag! Ok, I KNOW you did! So I think we'd like to have those phones, please." Judy gestured her right paw, but Riyuuneko nodded again and explained.

"Ok, well, officer, they were not in my client's immediate person, and you don't have a search warrant for the phones, so you're not entitled to them." Judy's face gone red, and she had enough. "Give me the phones right now, or so help me I—"

"Woah, calm down, carrots, I think I have an idea." Nick said, after trying to calm down Judy. She sighed heavily, and looked at Nick with her arms crossed. "What, Nick?"

"How about we ask the judge for the search warrant of the phones, and we might be able to break him. Whaddya say?" Judy thought about it and smiled. "Yeah! That sounds like a great idea! Uh, Mrs. Casey, call the district attorney's office so they can ask the judge for the search warrant."

Casey nodded, and after Riyuuneko handed the warrant back to her, she put it in her purse, grabbed her phone and started dialing the numbers.

"Ok, well, I think the judge would be more than happy to approve that warrant." After ringing for 10 seconds, Casey responded. "Uh, yes, hi, I have Mr. Edwards here who gave two cell phones to those attorneys, um, one and then he handed it to another and it's now in her briefcase while we're outside the courthouse... Ok... Mhm... Ok..."

"Uh, are we being detained?" Riyuuneko asked, pointing to himself with his right paw while looking at officer Nick. Nick smirked.

"What does it look like? Of course you're being detained." Riyuuneko nodded.

"Ok... Ok, good. Bye." Casey finished and hung up, and put the phone in her pocket and spoke to Riyuuneko.

"Ok, so, we need to have two cell phones from you, or we'll gonna have to detain you and get that search warrant."

"Ok, well um... Well, we're not gonna give you the cell phones that's not in his immediate person when you don't have a right to, so if you detain us, you'll have to get some constitutional safeguards to do that, but sure, if you're gonna detain us, then detain. I mean, we're not running or resisting or anything, so..." As Riyuuneko calmly explained the situation, an obese anthro male panda wearing a green shirt and a red hat walked out from the courthouse with a couple of papers and the female cheetah attorney sidestepped out of the way.

"We are being detained, right, officer?" Riyuuneko asked to Nick, and he nodded up and down with a cocky smile. "Thaaaaaat's right."

"You know, I'm getting sick of listening to his annoying voice! Shall we just arrest them already?" Judy interjected. "But shouldn't we wait for the approval of the search warrant for the phones before we can do that, carrots?" Nick asked. "Nah, I'm tired of waiting, let's arrest them right now!"

Nick smiled at the idea. "You know what? I think that's a great idea!"

"I agree too," said Casey. "Ok, so you're both under arrest for obstructing government operation." Riyuuneko simply smiled, like he somehow expected it. "Obstructing government operation? Wow, ok, sure." He said sarcastically, not even bothered by it at all. The female cheetah attorney on the other hand had her mouth and eyes wide open. She was expecting them to try to get a search warrant, but not just put them in jail.

"Well, Nick, frisk this arrogant cat attorney, will you?" Judy pointed to Riyuuneko while Nick nodded. "Yes, ma'am."

"I mean, this is definitely an unlawful arrest, but, if we're under arrest, then, we're under arrest." Riyuuneko calmly stated, before raising his arms, allowing Nick to frisk him. The female cheetah attorney gently put down her briefcase, and tried to comprehend what was happening.

"Oh my gosh... I... I didn't know we were being arrested, oh no..." She said with her pitch of voice going higher. "Yeah yeah yeah... Just wanna make sure you don't have any weapons on you, pal. Standard procedure."

"Of course not, sir." After the frisk, Nick grabbed the handcuffs from his pockets, and Riyuuneko put his arms straight and put his hands together, allowing Nick to cuff his wrists together. "And just to let you guys know, you bought this to yourselves." Judy said, smiling with confidence, but Riyuuneko kept his own smile.

"Alright, well, we have not broken any laws." After the female cheetah attorney calmed down, she straightened her arms and put her hands together as well, allowing Judy to handcuff her. "Are you two absolutely sure you wanna do this?" Riyuuneko asked.

"We are darn sure!" Judy answered. "After you attempted an unlawful search? You're really sure you wanna do this?" Riyuuneko asked again, smiling bigger with his teeth barely showing and nodding. "Yes, we are, you greedy slime ball!"

"Ok. And what's your name, ma'am?" He asked, pointing to Casey. "Casey Llama, sir."

"Now be quiet and come with us! You two are gonna spend a looooooong time in jail!" Judy said, to which Riyuuneko simply nodded and the two attorneys followed the officers.

After half a year, Riyuuneko, Cheessica Garcia, his assistant attorney, Nick, Judy and Casey were present in the courtroom, with Nick, Judy, and Casey on the left table, and Riyuuneko, Chessica, and their defense attorney, Phil, an anthro male raccoon with a small mustache, who is smaller than the attorneys, and the judge, who is an old, anthro male ape with his reading glasses on.

After Riyuuneko and Chessica Garcia were arrested, Casey told them that they will get freed if they apologized and that they admit that the officers did nothing wrong. But the two attorneys rejected the offer and insisted that the case goes to trial.

After searching the two phones, they found that there were no evidence that proves the prosecution's case. As such, the two attorneys made a motion to acquit them of all charges. Nevertheless, Nick, Judy and Casey were confident that the judge would find the two attorneys guilty of the obstruction charges.

As Judy stood up, she read the following statement in the paper out loud to the judge: "Your Honor, we would like to respectfully ask the court to lock those attorneys up and throw away the keys." Judy sat down and the judge nodded.

"Thank you, officer Judy, for your kind words." The judge said, before he took off his reading glasses. "That being said... Many things about this... 'obstruction' case has given me rather pause. Now let me get this straight, you officers wanted to request a search warrant for those cell phones, right?"

Nick and Judy answered with a nod. "Well, the fact that you have to arrest Mr. Riyuuneko and Mrs. Cheessica for obstruction of government operation before I could even approve the warrant is not only ridiculous, but I believe it is a blatant violation of the Fourth Amendment!" The table has immediately turned for Nick and Judy, as their smiles slowly escalated into their mouths opening wide, while the smiles grew wider for Riyuuneko and Cheessica.

"Your honor, officer Nick Wilde and officer Judy Hopps were well within their rights to have those cell phones searched under the exigent circumstance." Casey argued.

"And the exigent circumstance being Mr. Edwards giving two cell phones to those attorneys, and not complying with such an unlawful search? If you guys were so certain that the search warrant authorized you to seize the phones, then what was stopping you guys from taking Mrs. Chessica's bag and getting them? Certainly not Mr. Riyuuneko or Mrs. Chessica."

"Your honor, the defendant's have obstructed our operation!" Casey retorted. "By doing what exactly?"

"By not complying with the search and not giving us the phones, they have obstructed our government operation and will not let us do our jobs!"

"Your honor, under the Alabama Code of..." John cleared his throat before continuing, "13A-10-2. A person would've obstructed governmental operations by intimidation, physical force or interference. Neither the attorneys did anything that would prevent those officers from doing their jobs. In fact, according to that body cam video, the two attorneys gave them multiple chances to do so, but the state failed to prove that the obstruction had taken place."

"I agree with you, Mr. Phil. It's nice to hear that someone who has failed law school still managed to have some common sense in this here courtroom." The judge said.

"Your honor, the defendants WERE interfering with our operation!" Casey retorted. "This is ridiculous! Your honor, didn't you see the footage? This rude feline attorney was smiling when we arrested him! After we put handcuffs on him! After he refused to obey our orders! Couldn't you see that maybe it was obstructing government operation!?" Judy snapped, as Nick tried to calm her down again.

"Enough, officer Judy, I don't want to hold you in contempt of court!" The judge stared scornfully at her, despite his calm tone. "After looking at all the evidence, I've failed to see that there was any physical interference and I do not believe that search warrant extended to the person of Mr. Riyuuneko or the person of Mrs. Chessica. As to the other count, I think they did not have a lawful right to inspect. As such, I hereby grant the defendant's motions for acquittal." The judge explained, smiling at the defense attorneys, and they smiled back, ignoring Nick and Judy's shocked expressions.

"Your honor, the D.A.'s office strenuously objects-"

"And your objection is noted, counselor. Mr. Riyuuneko, I'm so sorry that it turned out like this. I promise to you that I'll fix the justice system and make it fairer than ever. And I'll make sure you guys won't ever get unlawfully arrested ever again."

"Oh, no apologies are needed, your honor." Riyuuneko said generously. "Still though, the way you defended your client, Mr. Edwards, zealously is simply professional and flawless! I wished I represented my clients like that when I was a defense attorney even if it meant getting handcuffed."

"Oh, it was nothing, your honor. We were simply doing our job."

"Your job!? By being the most sleazy, greedy scumbag on earth!? That's your job!?" Judy snapped. "That's quite enough, officer Judy. So, Mr. Riyuuneko and Mrs. Chessica, since you two are free, what are you going to do?"

"Ooooooh, not much, except we're gonna file a lawsuit against officer Nick Wilde, officer Judy Hopps, and district attorney Casey Llama on violations of the Fourth Amendment and for the unlawful arrest for the damages of I believe maybe $3 million." As Riyuuneko explained, the jaws and eyes of Nick and Judy went even wider than ever.

"Wait, WHAT!?" Nick said.

"This is outrageous!!" Judy sighed and crossed her arms. "We're gonna get a really good lawyer! The best lawyer we can find! Come on, Nick!" Judy grabbed Nick's right paw, dragging him out of the courtroom, as Nick was too dumbfounded to even react.

After the lawsuit was filed and after another half of year has passed, Riyuuneko and Chessica won the lawsuit, and so, Nick, Judy and Casey were forced to pay $3 millions in damages as a result. Riyuuneko's wife, who is a female anthro tiger police captain named Olivia Rivera, congratulated him and offered him another date to his favorite restaurant, as well as reporting Nick and Judy to Internal Affairs and have them fired.

Both Riyuuneko and Chessica were eventually allowed to practice law, and they became celebrities after that body cam footage became popular on the internet. All of the positive receptions gone to those attorneys, while the hate and backlash gone to Nick and Judy and the district attorney.

Things could not get worse for the fox or the bunny...
