

Corey and Oats in..
A Day in the Life of Piff

Everyone's favorite duo had many friends and one of their more popular pals was Piff the pufferfish, Piff had gained a huge fan following over his Youtube content which had boosted the popularity of Mel's Youtube channel up to 282 and he had lots of fans, you wouldn't have been able to guess that a little fish could gain so much attention and praise just for a hyperfixation on topics like onions and bathtubs and making jokes that were edgy but this little pufferfish was going to become quite the adorable sensation in the online community and now he was quite a star, even boosting up Mel's youtube channel up to 282 subscribers and becoming the mascot of the channel.

He had even branched out into making his own songs with his friends, made several short films, made a horror movie, a paranormal investigation show, and even had hosted his very own anniversary special for Mel's channel, in addition to this he was even the creator of his very own channel where he had showed fish themed content and even had a special relaxation block.

Now a lot of his fans were curious to as to what a day in the life of him was like and luckily he was able to answer that with a brand new adventure idea, he used some magic from the bedbox to make a camera crew appear and began to make a documentary about himself called 'What Piff Does Every Day'. This documentary would show fans all about what it was like to live his life from his point of view.

Piff started to make the documentary after he had gotten everyone ready for lunch and the documentary began with all the friends waking up and having breakfast as a video of the animated pufferfish from the sign on and closedown sequence was shown, after breakfast the documentary showed the group with him working on an adventure.

This was followed by showing the gang having lunch and some snacks before playing games in an underwater arcade and there was a montage of them all playing games and exploring and having a good time, as Piff gave in-dept interviews and explained his origin and his own deepest secrets, which was followed by footage of him shopping with Tangie and picking out clothes and go to an aquarium, and it even showed footage of him with Suku at the Golden Lotus bathtub store discovering each-other and discovering their shared love for bathtubs. 'The day I met Suku and discovered that not only he was my twin but that he also was a love of bathtubs like I do, was the most magical day ever.'

"Do you and Suku ever disagree on anything?"

"Nah, of course not."

In addition to this they all played some games and Piff even did a segment in the documentary where he showed everyone his dream house which was a lovely Japanese style palace with an oriental theme and an aquarium and movie theater, he even expressed all his dreams and told everyone what his favorite activities were, there was even a scene of him sniffing bathbombs. 'Bathbombs make me such a happy fish and they are so romantic as well.'

Which was followed by the segment of the documentary of him going swimming in a pool and treating Tangie to a spa and he even told the story of how he met Tangie and how he fell in love with her, out of all the fish he had flirted with - Tangie was his favorite and he would never let her go. This was followed by an afternoon tea time session and playtime as Piff explained what games he likes playing and what makes him happy.

They all had such a fun time making a documentary and Piff even showed highlights of his favorite moments from episodes and even explained what plans he had for future episodes - which of course all the friends enjoyed as they sat down and he thanked them all... 'No problem, Piff.' 'You're a great co-star and friend.' 'You guys really mean that?' 'Of course we do.' which was followed by them all gathering for dinner as Piff and Tangie shared meals with all their friends, followed by a special showing of the documentary and a music video Suku had made for him.

In addition to this they all played together as Mel emailed Jill about their adventure, Piff and Tangie went fishing together and had a karaoke session, Piff even thanked all his friends for helping him make the documentary as they had fun for a couple of hours - when their fun had ended Corey put on his bat pajamas and Oats put on his princess nightgown as they all brushed their teeth and headed into the bedroom. And there was a lovely soothing ASMR session afterwards with all of Piff's favorite wholesome activities..

Piff initiated a special version of his closedown sequence which had an anthropomorphic pufferfish filming a short film about making the closedown sequence, it showed him jumping out from a drawing of the bedroom set as his clothes morphed into pajamas in an elaborate magical sequence as he yawned and brushed his teeth and floating into the bed as the daytime background transitioned into a night-time one and a goodnight message popped up on screen.

Which was followed by Piff himself doing a sequence of himself flying through the clouds and diving through an underwater maze to find a treasure chest which contained plush fish toys and bathbombs as he floated into bed and kissed Tangie but not before giving a goodnight speech which was: 'I'd like to give a special goodnight speech to all my fans and viewers out there who watch my antics every week and who tune in to see me in action and to see all my friends too. I am very glad you all come along on the adventures and that you got to see a behind the scenes look at my life and what I do with my friends, in my home with everyone. So goodnight to all of my fans but especially to you, love from all of us but in particular Piffy.'

He drifted off to sleep with Tangie as Anglo turned off the light and they all had sweet dreams including Piff, who dreamed of making even more interesting videos and content with his friends. And thus their adventure had come to an end but more are coming up, so stay tuned.