

It was a quiet summer afternoon at the local park. Alexis was sitting in one of the many benches strewn across the park. She was there to try growing herself for the first time in a while, but she was a bit too into the calm embrace of nature to really start trying. That was to change very shortly however.

“This is just so nice,” Alexis smiled as she took a deep breath, “Almost don’t wanna outgrow this place quite yet...”

As she sat there however, the ground beneath her was beginning to faintly rumble as a faint, motherly voice hummed into earshot of Alexis. It was the tree sized lucario Leah taking a stroll and she just so happened to bump into the currently small Alexis on a small walk through the park.

“Oh hello down there!” Leah smiled as she took notice of Alexis and diverted her course towards her.

As Leah surprisingly kneeled beside the smaller lucario, Alexis was caught off guard. She was like double or even triple her size and just imagining what it was like from her point of view was kindling her interest to grow again.

“What’s your name sweetie?” Leah asked out of curiosity, “I’m Leah, but you can just call me mamacario.” “O-Oh I’m Alexis,” the smaller lucario blushed.

Leah casually looked down at Alexis, already thinking of her like her own kids with a playful smile while Alexis was just awkwardly sitting there, not quite used to someone taller than some trees casually chatting with her.

“Wh-What’re you doing here?” Alexis asked in a stutter as Leah put her hand on her chin. “Oh I was just out for my weekly walk to keep these muscles from deteriorating,” Leah replied warmly. “I-I see...” Alexis replied.

There was a brief, yet awkward moment of silence as Alexis struggled to think of something to say while Leah just gave Alexis the warmest smile she could ask for.

“S-So... n-now what?” Alexis said in an awkward chuckle as she continued to look at the massive mamacario. “Guess I can ask a question now,” Leah began, “What’s a doll like you strolling through this park all alone for?”

Alexis’s heart skipped a beat at her question, a bit nervous to mention what she initially planned, but Leah’s kind, motherly look was too much to say no to. She decided to let her secret loose.

“I was just gonna grow all macro sized...” Alexis began, “But it’s been so nice to be here and relax...”

Leah let out a loud gasp and squealed as her tail began to sway rapidly behind her, unable to control herself as she yanked Alexis from her seat and into a powerful hug.

“Sweetie, don’t hold yourself back like this!” Leah squealed with joy, “A darling like you should grow and grow and grow into whatever size you want and beyond that! Listen to mama Leah!”

Alexis was blushing as red as a cherry. She felt Leah’s grip tighten and her bust submerge her face more and more. Leah was growing a bit herself as she embraced the smaller lu.

“Y-You think I should?” Alexis asked as she felt something swell inside of her. “Not just think so,” Leah cooed as she loosened her grip a bit, “I knooooow so dear.”

Alexis was beginning to surge in her grip, Leah’s hug being broken up by her sudden growth spurt. Alexis felt the growth surge throughout her body with each beat of her heart, her aura making her grow and grow.

“I-I’m doing it!” Alexis blushed, her emerald eyes giving off a faint, green glow as she grew bigger than Leah. “Now keep on growing dear,” Leah assured, “Don’t hold yourself back now.”

Alexis’s heart was soaring now. She was climbing far beyond the trees in size as she stood up, now able to cling to Leah like a doll, paying her back with her own cleavage smothering. Leah felt almost prideful of Alexis breaking out of her shell.

“This feels so... good!” Alexis exclaimed with her increasingly booming voice. “That’s what I like to hear,” Leah giggled as she softly cuddled against Alexis’s bust.

Alexis was hundreds of feet tall in minutes, now having her caaaarefully stroll through the streets so she wouldn’t hurt a fly, many bystanders watching her intently as her tail and thighs grazed against the buildings as the gap grew smaller and smaller.

“I probably should’ve gone to a park closer to the edge of town,” Alexis blushed as her growth slowed down as she shuffled out of the city faster. “But then I wouldn’t be here dear,” Leah remarked as she felt Alexis’s heart skip a beat.

Alexis was reaching skyscraper sizes as she neared the edge of the city, unable to fully stop growing, not wanting to make Leah all sad she held herself back. She was almost free from the city confines now.

“A-Almost out!” Alexis exclaimed as she took a THUNDEROUS footstep into the city outskirts. “There we go dear!” Leah exclaimed as Alexis lifted her other foot.

Alexis was now outside the city, her growth beginning to steadily accelerate faster than before as she turned back towards the city, seeing how small it was becoming compared to her by the second.

“This is a bit more like it now isn’t it dear?” Leah asked as Alexis pulled her away from her chest. “Much more like it,” Alexis said with a soft smile, “And I won’t hurt anyone over here.”

Alexis gently set Leah on her shoulder as she climbed into the thousands, both now looking down at even the tallest buildings of the city as it reached Alexis's waistline... and she was only growing faster from here.

"Look at how small it's getting!" Alexis playfully chuckled. "And it's only getting smaller if you don't plan on stopping now," Leah giggled as she clung to Alexis's shoulder.

Alexis's growth had a sudden JOLT to the growth rate, like a bolt of electricity ran through her, soon breaking into miles of height as Leah held onto her fur tightly, almost jealous of how big Alexis was getting in comparison to her now.

"Seems like you're having the ride of your life now," Leah smirked as Alexis's cheeks grew dynamax red. "O-Of course I am thanks to you!" Alexis assured her.

Alexis took a step away from the city, a sudden WOOSH of wind washed over the city, the clouds were gathering around her bust as her growth kept jolting. She was gonna outgrow the planet soon at this rate!

"Well it's my pleasure," Leah remarked with a smile, "I wanna make sure all of my pups grow as big and strong as they could ever want." "Is that so?" Alexis asked curiously.

Leah simply nodded with a bright smile strewn across her cheeks. Unbeknownst to Alexis Leah's heart was racing and her body began to feel all tingly from head to toe. She was clearly trying to hold herself back to the stark contrast to her own advice.

"That's what good mothers do after all," Leah smiled as her breasts wobbled with each thump of her heart. "You slightly skewed the meaning, but it is true," Alexis playfully giggled as she looked down at the ground.

Alexis was now over a dozen miles tall! No mountain could go past her ankles now as she looked all around her. She was beginning to glance into other countries as well as her height rapidly climbed higher and higher into the atmosphere.

"Wh-Whoa I'm so high up!" Alexis exclaimed as she tried to get the view of any cities. "And it looks like you're not planning on stopping now," Leah remarked as she took in the view, "Keep on going!"

Leah's body felt like it was gonna burst any second. Her body felt tight like it needed to just... BURST out for freedom. She of course kept this little tidbit under wraps for a bit longer.

"I'm on top of the world!" Alexis exclaimed gleefully as the clouds began to gather at her knees. "I'm so proud of you!" Leah chuckled as she held herself back, "It looks to be SO much fun to get this big!"

Alexis was nearing country sizes after a few more minutes and Leah was beginning to lose control of herself when Alexis was breaking through the atmosphere and into the vacuum of space. Leah was slowly starting to grow now too.

“And it looks so fun in fact, it seems you got me too worked up!” Leah exclaimed as her eyes gave off a faint, red glow. “W-Worked up?” Alexis asked curiously as she looked down at Leah, “How so?”

Leah’s height was surging rhythmically, like a heartbeat. Her face was flushed as she began to grow and grow, quickly becoming visible to Alexis again at a rapid pace, her weight pressing down on her shoulder like a boulder was forming on it.

“O-Oh that’s what you meant!” Alexis exclaimed as Leah soared in size beside her. “I got too excited to just stay all small,” Leah giggled as she looked up, “Hope you don’t mind me joining in.” “N-Not at all!” Alexis exclaimed as she reached for Leah.

Alexis held Leah in her hands as she filled out her palms. Alexis was now continental in size, towering far beyond the atmosphere, was now holding herself back for a brief moment, wanting Leah to catch up to her for more cuddles on a... bigger scale so to speak.

“I’ll wait until you catch up,” Alexis smiled as she was forced to set Leah down when she got too heavy to carry. “D’awwww, you wanna wait for little old me?” Leah joked as she swelled to the size of a country. “You heard me right silly,” Alexis joked as she loomed over Leah while she still could while the mamacario sat down on the earth.

Leah was growing rampantly, forcing Alexis to step into the ocean behind her that hardly reached her ankles. Leah sat up as she soared to Alexis’s size once again, forcing Alexis to pick up her own growth rate so as to not let Leah get toooooo much more height on her.

“Looks like the mamacario caught up fast,” Alexis blushed as the oceans grew too short to go past her toes. “I meant it when I said I wanted in on the fun,” Leah giggled as she stood up, “You made it look like too much fun!”

Leah was a head taller than Alexis now, just perfect size for pulling her growing lucario into a tight squeeze as they grew bigger and bigger, their tails grazing past the moon as Alexis softly cuddled against her new mamacario.

“It got even better with you around,” Alexis smiled as their tails began to wag uncontrollably. “D’awwww are you trying to use flattery on me sweetie?” Leah smiled back as she petted Alexis’s head.

They were now beginning to drift through space, now the size of earth and won’t stop growing ANYTIME soon with how into it they were becoming. The glow from the sun illuminating them as they blocked it from the people below.

“Looks like we’re a worldwide phenomena now,” Leah joked as they glanced down at earth. “Bigger than that silly,” Alexis countered as they both had a sudden surge of growth.

The earth was like a marble in comparison to them now and the ideas Leah had were endless as she picked up the tiny rock as Alexis’s heart raced, thinking Leah would hurt them by breaking it between her fingers.

“B-Be careful with the earth!” Alexis stammered as a faint aura surrounded the planet. “I won’t sweetheart,” Leah said as she began to mold the earth like clay, “Just making it so they can join us.”

The earth was molded into a thin ring that could fit around one of their toes with ease before the aura faded away. Leah slid the ring onto Alexis’s middle toe, making her face red as it tightened around her toe before growing with the rest of her.

“That’ll keep them safer now won’t it?” Leah assured as she straightened herself out again. “M-Much safer honestly,” Alexis blushed as she embraced Leah tightly once again.

Alexis buried her cheek in Leah’s chest as Leah continued to pet her head softly, their growth now being delivered in powerful spurts as they grew bigger and bigger, first outgrowing the sun, and then the solar system and beyond. They couldn’t be stopped.

“Your aura is still running rampant. I can feel it,” Leah smirked as she held Alexis like she was her own pup, “Just how big aaaaare you intending to go?” “Y-You really wanna know?” Alexis asked softly. “Just a bit curious is all,” Leah replied as she glanced across the starry sky with a smile.

Stars were reflecting off one another’s eyes, making them shimmer like galaxies as they looked at one another, slowly reaching real galactic sizes as they drifted in space. If anyone on earth could see them they’d honestly think it was adorable.

“Th-Think... universal,” Alexis blushed profusely as Leah rubbed behind her ear. “Universal you say?” Leah cooed softly, “How’d you know I was gonna suggest that to you?”

Alexis’s heart skipped beat after beat with that sentence. She had no idea, in a million years, that Leah would have suggested sizes like that, let alone be INTO being that huge. Alexis was over the moon. (well both figuratively and literally)

“Y-You really were gonna say I should go that far with this?” Alexis asked out of curiosity. “I did say don’t hold yourself back now didn’t I?” Leah playfully teased. “Y-Yes you did,” Alexis stammered.

The Milky Way wrapped around their waists like a cluster of ribbons gathered around them, tails wagging and making stardust swirl throughout the cosmos. Alexis was beginning to calm down as she snuggled against Leah, curling her toes softly as she continued to let her aura run rampant within her.

“I go all the way with what I mean,” Leah smiled as another galaxy splashed against her cheek like a raindrop. “I don’t doubt you at all,” Alexis softly replied.

Even galaxies were growing to be a bit too small in comparison to them now, hardly like little patches of glitter lost in their fur where it was nice and warm. They were dead set on outgrowing the puny universe.

“We should do this more often,” Alexis remarked as their tails pressed against the outer edge of the universe. “You should know I’d adore to do this more sweetheart,” Leah smiled back as her feet touched the outer edge.

The universe was growing more and more taut against them, both of them now smothering each other as they pressed against the universal bubble, both desperate to break free from such measly confines at all costs.

“We’re about to break through any second now!” Leah exclaimed as they felt the bubble begin to tear. “J-Just a little moooooore!” Alexis exclaimed as she clung to Leah tightly.

It was as sudden as a bang being heard out of nowhere. They both BURST out of the universe bubble and into the multiversal realm, the bubble reforming in between them as their auras began to fade, now able to take any universe and hold it in the palm of their hands like a baseball.

“O-Oh wooow!” Alexis exclaimed as she looked at the universes around them, “Look at how small they are!” Like little ornaments on a christmas tree,” Leah giggled as they looked down at their own universe.

Everything was so small in comparison to them. Even the people on Alexis’s toe ring were having their minds implode realizing they were beyond the confines of the universe. Nobody could compare to the lucarios however.

“So how long should we stay here>” Alexis asked curiously. “Let’s just wait for our aura effects start to wear off before making a decision,” Leah replied. “Okaaaay,” Alexis replied as she snuggled Leah with a smile.

And so, the two lucarios drifted there, keeping their home universe safe and close as they had the time of their lives, taking in sights everyone could only dream of seeing...