- The story focuses on a chubby Shiba-Inu dog named Nero who works as a security guard at the famous Freddy Fazbear Pizzeria. As the previous security guard went missing under mysterious circumstances, Nero took the job due to the necessity to pay off the ever-higher rent of the apartment.

Nero doesn't expect the rumors of the killer's animatronics to be true. As a result, he is trapped in the security guard's room all night, hearing scary sounds outside. When the dog begins to fear for its own life, a bear animatronic appears at the door of the room. Instead of the expected attack, Freddy shows a far-reaching interest in him. M x M Romance -

Prologue

8.00 a.m. on June 20

It was a very hard morning for Nero. When the landlord came to show him the rent increase bills, Shiba was devastated. He was not prepared for such a large raise. Soon after the owner left the apartment, the fluffy dog started looking for a new job. After a long search, he found one well-paid job and quickly decided to send a CV there. An hour later the recruiter contacted him and said on the phone that Shiba had been hired and that he was to come to his new job that evening. Nero was glad to hear that and replied that he would be there on time. Around noon, while the dog was browsing the information on the internet, it came across a mention that one of the employees had gone missing at Freddy Fazbear Pizzeria last night. The police searched for the missing wolf, but it was to no avail - the wolf disappeared without a trace, as if it had burst in.

Chapter One: 23.00 pm. June 20

When dusk came and Nero went to the restaurant, he had mixed feelings about it. His instincts told him that finding a job so quickly was very suspicious, maybe even just disturbing. The recruiter didn't even ask him about his experience in the profession as if he didn't care at all. The previous missing pizzeria security guard was reportedly just one of many who suddenly disappeared or resigned from this job. Although Nero did not believe the stories that animatronics could come to life at night, he had heard such rumors in the city and it disturbed him greatly.

As the keys to the pizzeria had somehow hit the door to his apartment an hour before he got to work, Nero had them in his pocket and was ready to spend the night in the building.

12.00 at night he was already sitting in the chair in front of the desk and looking around at the interesting looking room. The dog patted his big, soft belly and smiled broadly at the colorful posters and children's drawings of three mechanical animals - a yellow hen, a purple rabbit, and a brown bear with a hat on his head. He found the bear a fascinating figure, but he did not have time to look at it more closely, because a moment later his phone rang.

A mysterious male voice in the receiver told him that there was nothing to fear in this job and gave him instructions on what the dog should do to keep the pizzeria safe. Nero thought the voice sounded as if it had been pre-recorded, but he couldn't tell for sure because a black spinning fan drowned out the sound coming out of the earpiece. The conversation ended with the phone turning off abruptly.

The dog took a sip of the cola from the white-red mug he had placed on his desk earlier, because he thought he would need sugar and caffeine to stay awake. Only then did he take a closer look at the room. He noticed two square buttons on each side of the steel door, and a lot of cobwebs under the desk, as if hardly anyone had ever used it before – the scattered pages showed that the desk was only a desk for leaving things.

The desk top was covered in dust and the drawer handles were in good condition and appeared intact, so probably the drawers were completely empty. The glass in the wall to the left of the desk was scratched as if something had hit it. There were quite a few cables hanging from the ceiling that presumably powered the machinery in this room, but the dog's greatest attention was drawn to a funny looking pink cookie figurine with a candle on its head. When he touched it, it made a funny noise. Nero laughed in a slightly better mood. He started looking through the cameras. He zoomed in on the sign that reads "Office Rules." The inscription read like this:

1. Don't waste power!
2. Don't laze around!
3. Don't take the pens!
4. Don't let customers inside!
5. Don't make weird noises!
6. Don't stain the carpets!
7. Don't allow refunds!

Nero laughed briefly, then shook his head. He slurped off his straw amusingly and opened the pizza carton with a screeching noise. And then ... Then the dog heard a very disturbing sound from behind the wall, as if someone was moving in the next room. In the Dining Hall, he heard the sound of a chair moving. Nero felt chills down his spine. He ran his paw over his head, wiping sweat from his forehead, and smoothed the fur on his soft, large cheeks.
