

"Let's all get ready for the next step."

Upon arriving home, Kailrun moves to Trans-form's room, which can be transformed into a person he has seen once and can even replicate himself.

"Trans-form, are you ready for my request?"

"Of course. It was a lot of fun making it."

"There's going to be a huge reward this weekend, so look forward to it."

"If I can be with you, I think that's a reward for me."

"As expected, you're such a commendable fellow."

Kailrun pats Trans-form's head with thick hands. Having changed his appearance to Hunter, he stresses that he will hold an emergency interview with reporters. Since Hunter has not held many press conferences, reporters head to the conference hall wondering.

"I'm going to confess a shocking fact here today."

Kailrun unties his disguise and spreads his hidden wings as hard as he can. When a dragon species that only thought was extinct appeared in front of people, people couldn't hide their shock.

"The dragon race has been rejected by people. Thanks to that, I had to dress up under the name of Hunter, a reptile. It was such a painful time that I couldn't live in my way. Our dragon race was massacred because of false rumors that eating a dragon's body is good for people. We were sacrificed by false rumors created by executives of the Hero Association who envied the versatile talents of the dragon race. Let's watch the first video."

There is a scene where executives of the Hero Association, who were trusted by people, gather in a remote room and talk.

"Did you hear that? The last dragon is dead!"

"Really? We should make a toast."

"As expected, I've hated it since a long time ago when dragons crossed the heroes' spots."

"Dragon has to go extinct. Did I spread the rumor well to the citizens?"

"Of course. The public is like a dog or a pig, so they believe whatever they say."

It is a video that was manipulated to the extent that the souls of the executives of the Hero Association, who died from Kailrun, once again grabbed the back of their necks. This voice spreads around the world through the radio waves of media companies owned by Kailrun. Even before people's shocks go away, Kailrun begins a second revelation.

"The next thing I want to reveal is that the heroes of the Hero Association pretended to be heroes during the day and did more dirty and bad things than so-called villains at night. There's a conversation here. You should listen to it, right?"

The last heroes, Strength, Nightmare, and Cure, appear. People's shock was even greater because they were considered the best heroes with a noble and just spirit.

"Hey, there was an article about the person I killed in the newspaper yesterday".

"Really? The newspaper said they don't know why he died".

"I wrapped her up with a membrane, pierced her nails here and there, made a sea of blood, and added gravity to bake it like a flat squid."

"Hey, I'm going to take her, too. You have to chew, bite, taste, and enjoy her."

"More than that, when are you going to have a fireworks display in the village where beggars live?"

"Hey, why are you burning that place?" They're life losers who don't do anything anyway. "Would it be fun to burn things like that?"

"Don't do that. Do you want to have a hot night with the CEO's kids?"

"Will they be able to withstand our strength?"

"They'll probably be crippled and go home."

Even though it is a short conversation, words, and actions that could be reasons for disqualification for hero activities such as acknowledging crimes, planning arson, sexual harassment, and ignoring the weak are broadcast worldwide on the media. Of course, the heroes didn't say this. Trans-form divided his body into three and then turned into the last heroes to manipulate the video. The heroes who were teased even when they had the last fight with Kailrun were humiliated by Kailrun even after their death. However, these early videos worked for people. People could not think critically. They just believed what the media said. Of course, Kailrun also planned and delivered the video manipulation to Trans-form in a sophisticated manner so that people could not doubt it. The image of Kailrun, the last dragon survivor who had to hide his identity from birth to adulthood, has solidified into the image of "Saints in the Bible." In particular, Kailrun's last words made people's wages cry.

"I will no longer back down or run away. I will stand as tall on the ground as I am. That's it for the press conference. I'm a dragon race, Kailrun. "Thank you."